The role

The Faculty of Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics is seeking a full-time, fixed-term Departmental Lecturer to assume teaching and examining responsibilities in Phonology and Phonetics, and to conduct research in Phonology and/or Phonetics. The candidate will be responsible for Phonology teaching at Graduate level and will be required to give lectures/classes and tutorials in Phonetics and Phonology for undergraduates.

Responsibilities

The Departmental Lecturer will be required to carry out the following duties to the satisfaction of the Faculty Board:

- To give the equivalent of no fewer than 36 lectures or classes per year on subjects in Phonology and Phonetics, with a particular emphasis on Phonology, as the Faculty Board of Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics shall direct.
- To provide 144 hours (6 hours per week in full term, on average) of tutorials or intercollegiate classes in Phonetics and Phonology at undergraduate level. Subjects in which teaching is regularly required include Phonology, General Phonetics, Acoustic Phonetics, phonetic transcription, and Experimental Phonetics.
- To contribute to administrative arrangements for teaching the graduate and undergraduate courses in Phonology and Phonetics.
- To supervise and give tutorials to Master's students, and to supervise Doctoral students (for which additional payment will be given).
- To engage in study and research in Phonology and/or Phonetics to underpin teaching.

(f) To engage in university examining where required (for which additional payment will be given).

(g) To contribute to the administrative work of the Faculty in both term and vacation, under the direction of the Faculty Board.

Selection criteria

Essential selection criteria

(i) A strong ongoing research record, appropriate to the stage of the candidate's career, with evidence of distinguished research in the field of Phonology and/or Phonetics, with a clear plan for future research.

(ii) Evidence of the ability to teach in the field of Phonology and Phonetics at university level, including introductory Phonology, General Phonetics, Acoustic Phonetics and phonetic transcription at undergraduate level; and rule-based and constraint-based Phonology at the postgraduate level.

(iii) Evidence of the ability to give lectures and classes and to lecture at an appropriate level (to undergraduate and graduate audiences) in an interesting and engaging manner.

(iv) Evidence of the ability to teach graduate students in Phonology and willingness to supervise them at Master's and Doctoral levels.

(v) Willingness to undertake administrative tasks, as directed by the Faculty Board.

(vi) Evidence of the ability to act as an examiner.

(vii) Candidates must have been awarded or must have completed all the requirements for a doctorate in Phonology or Phonetics by 1st July 2021.

Desirable selection criteria

(i) Evidence of engagement with the wider academic community.

(ii) In the event that the successful candidate's main research is in theoretical Phonology, the ability to oversee or supervise research of an experimental nature in Phonology and/or Phonetics as well.

(iii) In the event that the successful candidate's main research is of an experimental nature, the ability to oversee or supervise research in theoretical Phonology as well.

Pre-employment screening

Standard checks

If you are offered the post, the offer will be subject to standard pre-employment checks. You will be asked to provide: proof of your right-to-work in the UK; proof of your identity; and (if we haven't done so already) we will contact the referees you have nominated. You will also be asked to complete a health declaration so that you can tell us about any health conditions or disabilities for which you may need us to make appropriate adjustments.

The Phonetics Laboratory

The Phonetics Laboratory was established in 1980, and is now a constituent part of the Faculty of Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics. It occupies a suite of rooms in 41 Wellington Square, and as well as offices for postholders, includes two small recording studios (one also doubling as an acoustics and perception laboratory), a speech physiology laboratory, a speech processing/acoustic phonetics laboratory, and a small library

The Laboratory's resources are used by the Faculty's phoneticians and linguistics students. Hardware for physiological study includes electroglottography, labial electromyography, measurement of airflow, ultrasound tongue imaging, anatomical models and tube models. Audio recording provision includes two studios with high quality microphones and digital recording. The studios are equipped with a computer system for the presentation of visual and/or auditory stimuli. As well as excellent provision for research in speech physiology and acoustics, the computing infrastructure of the lab is outstanding.

The University's policy on retirement

The University operates an Employer Justified Retirement Age (EJRA) for all academic posts and some academic-related posts. The University has adopted an EJRA of 30 September before the 69th birthday for all academic and academic-related staff in posts at grade 8 and above. The justification for this is explained at: <https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/the-ejra>

For existing employees, any employment beyond the retirement age is subject to approval through the procedures: <https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/the-ejra>

There is no normal or fixed age at which staff in posts at grades 1-7 have to retire. Staff at these grades may elect to retire in accordance with the rules of the applicable pension scheme, as may be amended from time to time.

Equality of opportunity

Entry into employment with the University and progression within employment will be determined only by personal merit and the application of criteria which are related to the duties of each particular post and the relevant salary structure. In all cases, ability to perform the job will be the primary consideration. No applicant or member of staff shall be discriminated against because of age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage or civil partnership, pregnancy or maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, or sexual orientation.

Benefits of working at the University
